FEBS, the Federation of European Biochemical Societies

Founded on 1st January 1964, the Federation of European Biochemical Societies (FEBS) has become one of Europe's largest organizations in the molecular life sciences. It has over 30,000 members across 39 biochemistry and molecular biology societies (its 'Constituent Societies') in different countries of Europe and neighboring regions. As a grassroots organization FEBS thereby provides a voice to a large part of the academic research and teaching community in Europe and beyond. As a charity, FEBS promotes and supports biochemistry, molecular biology, cell biology, molecular biophysics and related research areas through its journals, Congress, Advanced Courses, Fellowships, and other initiatives. There is an emphasis in many programmes on scientific exchange and cooperation between scientists working in different countries, and on promotion of the training of early-career scientists.

FEBS Congress

The FEBS Congress aims to provide an outstanding international forum in the area of Europe and neighboring regions for the face-to-face exchange of knowledge and ideas across the molecular life sciences. FEBS Congresses feature inspiring plenary lectures from distinguished researchers, a range of themed symposia providing updates from leading experts in different research areas, special sessions to engage participants on wider issues beyond research, and the contributions of participants towards the scientific discussion at the event through posters and brief oral presentations.

The FEBS Congress has a strong emphasis on support, education and inspiration for the next generation of scientists, such as a bursary scheme for early-career researchers and a satellite Young Scientists' Forum. Altogether FEBS Congresses aim to be an exemplary cross-discipline gathering in the molecular life sciences for research presentation, discussion, learning, inspiration and encouragement - with participants leaving with new research knowledge and ideas, and perhaps the beginnings of international collaborations and friendships. FEBS Congresses are a collaboration between FEBS and its Constituent Societies (the biochemistry and molecular biology societies across Europe and neighboring regions that belong to FEBS), with the organization of the event awarded to a different host Society each year. In 2025, the congress will be held in İstanbul, Türkiye, hosted by the Turkish Biochemical Society.

SCIENTIFIC PROGRAMME INTRODUCTION

Programme Introduction

We are excited to present the scientific programme plans for the 49th FEBS Congress, set against the vibrant and historic backdrop of Istanbul in 2025. The event promises to be an exceptional gathering, showcasing groundbreaking research and fostering collaborative dialogue between basic and applied molecular and cellular life sciences, including clinical biochemistry. The speaker list and programme schedule will be presented on the website in the autumn.

Plenary Lectures

The Congress will host several plenary lectures delivered by distinguished research leaders from around the globe, some of whom will be receiving FEBS medals or prizes. These sessions will provide a platform for sharing seminal discoveries and insights across diverse scientific disciplines.

Parallel Symposia Sessions

The 18 parallel scientific symposia sessions (each lasting 2 hours) will host lectures by three invited speakers. Additionally, two short and three speed talks will be selected from the submitted abstracts.

The symposia sessions, encompassing a wide array of fundamental and emerging topics, will be organized into several thematic symposia groups:

>> Check <https://2025.febscongress.org/programme-introduction> for all parallel symposia session topics and more details.

Special Sessions

The programme will also feature special sessions on topics such as education and training, research infrastructures and clinical translation.

Poster Sessions and Networking

Posters will play a crucial role in facilitating knowledge exchange and networking. Poster presentation sessions, categorized by topic, will provide attendees with opportunities to engage with the latest research and foster collaborative discussions.

We are enthusiastic about the diverse and dynamic programme of the FEBS 2025 Congress and look forward to welcoming you to Istanbul for an inspiring and impactful scientific experience.
